Clinical Educator in Audiology

Department of Communication Disorders

- Full-time at 37.5 hours per week (1.0 FTE)
- Continuing (i.e. permanent) position

Would you like to be a positive leading influence in the education of our future skilled Audiologists?

Applications are invited for the position of Clinical Educator in Audiology in the Department of Communication Disorders. Utilising your experience as an Audiologist and experience in adult education or clinical training, you will provide clinical education, including the supervision, teaching and evaluation of post-graduate students through the provision of clinic-based teaching.

You will be working within a small passionate team who take pride in being able to make a difference to the audiology profession through commitment to the development of competent new-graduate clinicians. By joining the team at UC, you will have access to the latest evidence based practice while having the opportunity for interprofessional practice and education. You will also have an opportunity to contribute to the strategic planning of the Department and the UC Speech and Hearing Clinic and promote this service to the general public and health professionals.

To be successful in this role you will have:

- a clinical post graduate qualification in audiology
- full membership, or be eligible to register, with the New Zealand Audiological Society
- experience applying evidence-based interventions
- experience working with a range of people from diverse backgrounds
- commitment to ongoing professional development and the ability to keep up-to-date with specialist skills and knowledge
- proven ability to work with a range of equipment providers such as hearing aid manufacturers.

The University of Canterbury is committed to promoting a world-class learning environment through research and teaching excellence, and has a vision statement of “People Prepared to Make a Difference”. You will have the opportunity to work alongside members of a diverse academic community and enrich your own professional and personal development.
